

#Badwater Bound

Dear Family and Friends,

As many of you may already know, this weekend, I will be traveling to Death Valley, CA to participate in the Badwater 135 race. The race starts Monday night (7/18) at 8 p.m. (PST). Badwater 135 is one of the most challenging endurance events in the world. It is a 135 mile ultra-marathon race (5 consecutive marathons) in the 115+ degree temperatures of Death Valley. The race begins at 282 feet below sea level (lowest point in U.S.) and rises to 8,000 feet above sea level, ending at the Mt. Whitney Portal. There are only 100 runners accepted into the race from around the world. The cutoff time for completion is 48 hours.

My twitter handle is @ChipCorley. I appreciate your thoughts, prayers and positive vibes. You can tweet or follow additional happenings at #badwater135, @badwater, #badwater.

Tracking is available throughout the entire race (updated every 5 minutes). These links will be activated by race start. <http://www.badwater.com/2016-styr-labs-badwater-135-webcast/> or the mobile site at <http://bluedot.mobi/>.

In the spirit of running,

--Chip